New constable joins force

A new Police Constable started his duties with the Deseronto force this week. Richard John Dennis, who comes from Belleville began work on Tuesday morning at 9:00 a.m. Constable Dennis trained at Loyalist College in Belleville.

He is married, and his wife Carol is in Belleville General Hospital at present, awaiting the birth of their first child.

A second officer joins the force next week. He is Brian Barry Cowan, also of Belleville. Constable Cowan is married, with two children. He served for two years with the Metro Toronto police force, and is at present employed as a Parks Security Officer with the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources at Outlet Beach Provincial Park.

Two fined for assault

Two men who assaulted Deseronto Police Constable Norman Clark on April 21 were fined a total of $800 by Judge Ronald C. Jackson in Napanee provincial court this week. The men were convicted of assaulting a police officer and driving with a blood-alcohol count in excess of .08.

Lawrence Howie, 46, of R.R. 1 Napanee was fined $300 or 30 days in jail on the assault conviction and $200 or 20 days in jail on the driving conviction.

Arthur Frederick Hudson, 51, of R.R. 3 Napanee was also fined $300 or 30 days in jail on the conviction of assaulting a police officer.

Both men were involved in the assault on the Police Constable, who had his revolver taken away when he tried to arrest the driver of a pickup truck for impaired driving.

Library puppet play

On Friday, August 6th at 11:00 a.m., the Deseronto Library will be offering an original and unique puppet play entitled, "The Sockingtons Visit Boomsell's Department Store". There is no admission charge and everyone is welcome.

Derryl Van Vlack "minds the shop" at Van Vlack's Market on the Deseronto-Napanee stretch of Highway No. 2. There is a wide selection of home grown vegetables for sale at the market.

The cool wet weather has been a boon to the beans, cabbages and other "cool loving" vegetables, but has held back the ripening of their tomatoes and corn crop.

New United Church Minister

The new minister of the Quinte Pastoral Charge, United Church of Canada, Rev. Floyd Carleton Barnes, B.A., Sc., B.D., comes to the Deseronto and Melrose churches from the Harrow-Smith-Verona Charge.

Born in Toronto, Rev. Barnes graduated from the University of Toronto in Electrical Engineering and was ordained in 1957.

His wife, Carolyn, was born in Japan, the daughter of missionaries. They have five children, two of whom are still at home.

Robert Reynolds drives a Reynolds Brothers pea combine through a field in Prince Edward County. This particular field was only yielding about 25% capacity but the cool, damp weather had started root rot in the peas and they had to be cut regardless of their size.

These pea combines pick up the windrowed cut peas, extract the peas from the pods and drop the stems, leaves and pods back on the ground. This means the truck then takes only the peas to the factory for processing.

Me and Elma took a drive over to Napanee Fair last weekend ter take a look at all the livestock. Always did enjoy the fall fairs, though Napanee is having theirs kind of early this year.

Stopped to watch the judging of the Holstein cattle show, and I was right interested ter see that there was some red and white ones showing. Why I remember when the red and white cows were right framed on in Holsteins, everybody wanted just black and white ones. Seems as they're respectable now, and I guess it was the first time that they've shown in Napanee.

Saw some real nice pigs too, and some of them new fancy Charolais cavs. I hear as they grow fast, but they do have awful big calves, and that some times causes feeding problems. Was talking to a feller next to me when I was watching the judging, and he was telling me that there's a big outfit over Glenora way breeding the Charolais. Seems that they always breed first time fresheners to Hereford bulls so as the calves will be small enough fer the caw to have on her own. If'n they're too big they have ter get the vet in to do one of them Caesarian operations.

On the way back along number two we passed that Mohawk Bay Park. After reading how one of Deseronto's leading ladies been complaining about the washrooms being locked up all night Elma and me stopped to have a real good look over the fence. Must say, it looked pretty good, that new feller done a lot of work in there. I can see his point if'n he don't want his nice new washrooms with all over with rude words and graffiti, but must be kind of rough on the campers round about two o'clock in the mornin'—specially them as ain't used ter nipping behind a bush up the back forty.

Talking about washrooms, I got a beef about this here new fangled toilet paper what they're filling up with baby powder. A feller can't blow his nose on the stuff no more, without sneezing and snorting with a nose full. Now, if'n I wanted baby powder on my rear end I could put it there myself, I'd far sooner be able ter blow my nose.

Elma says as that's not the kind of thing I should oughter be writing so I'll change the subject.

Hear on the grapevine as there's to be goats in the Picton Fair this year. Me and Elma figured maybe we might show our Penelopy, she's gettin ter be real tame now and walks on a line good as the old dog. I'll have ter ask around and find out how fancy these hear goats have ter be before you can show 'em, my Penny ain't no real fancy goat, but we think she's a winner.

The little grand-daughter aims ter enter some of the banties in the children's competitions. The old rooster is a lovely looking bird, all red and gold, and just full of his own importance. He's got a funny looking comb and we noticed last year that the chicks had a real variety of comb shapes. I asked my neighbours boy who's one of these college students how come, and he said it were genetical. The old rooster has a walnut comb, but all the old hens had just ordinary single combs.

The young guy showed me in one of his books how when you cross a walnut combed bird with a single combed one, you get rose combs and pea combs as well as single and walnuts. It were right interesting, they know a lot more about that kind of thing than they did in my day. Wish sometimes that I were twenty years younger, then maybe I could unroll some of them long words, but I reckon it's a bit late at my time of life. Still it's nice when somebody takes the time ter explain in easy words so I can understand how these things work. Always was fascinated about how caw creatures pass along the way they look. I said so to this young feller and he said that there were so many possible combinations of characteristics that he found it real surprising that folks children ever looked like their parents, instead of the other way around.

Now I never say it's funny when kids look more like the hired man than their dad. It's not scientific, but it sure used ter make life interesting!

Picton Fair: first time for dairy goats

For the first time ever, dairy goats are to be included in Picton Fair this year. The fair is scheduled to open on Friday, September 11 and the goat show will be held at 1:00 p.m. on Saturday, September 12.

Five breeds of dairy goats are commonly found in North America. All five breeds are expected to be represented at Picton. There is a growing number of goat enthusiasts in the area, and the goat population is increasing steadily.

two breeds are the Alpines, also various colours, with erect ears, and the many coloured Nubians, which have long drooping ears.

The judge for the show has not yet been named. Spokesman Dave Johnston said that the Fair Board would try to obtain the services of someone from another district who would not be familiar with the animals in this area.

The Fair Board was approached by Mr. Johnston three years ago with a request to include dairy goats in the Fair. When the decision to include them was made this year, Mr. Johnston was invited to sit on the Board as their 'goat representative'.

In addition to the Picton and Campbellford fairs this year, the Eastern Group of the Ontario Dairy Goat Society is planning to hold its annual 'Starlight Sale' this month. The sale is to be held at Campbellford Fair Grounds on August 14 at 1:00 p.m.

Breeders from Eastern Ontario will bring only their very best stock to this sale. The animals considered represent the cream of the crop, and usually sell for good prices.

The 35 unit Senior Citizen Housing Project is fast taking shape in Deseronto. A tentative opening date of August was first given for the building, but it obviously will be later than that.

Old time English sailors kidnapped by press gangs

The scene is a tavern in a small town on the coast of England. The year is 1804. An ex-seaman and a few of his old sailing mates have got together over a few yards of ale, to reminisce about the old days on their farm, before their stint at sea, before the bad food, miserable conditions and brutal officers. There's plenty of noise, and much laughter. For this retired sailor, anyplace is better than the living-death of a mon-of-war.

Inland a few hundred miles, in the London Parliament Buildings, the Secretary of War is holding a confidential briefing with King George III. Napoleon Bonaparte, having pounced on the confused, leaderless French following the 1789 Revolution, has just declared himself emperor of France and the security of England was no threat.

The map of Europe has undergone violent change at the Emperor's hand. Austria and Russia had already fallen by 1804 and rumblings from Paris were predicting England would be Napoleon's next target.

"Fortunately," comments the King, "Our Royal Navy still rules the waves." The Secretary agrees, but complains that his ships will need more men if they are to maintain their narrow advantage over the French.

With those words, the life of that retired seaman, in his traditional haunt a hundred miles away was soon to change.

He was now one of many possible victims of the press gang, a group of men paid by the King, whose job it was to force men to enlist in the Royal Navy. They called it impressment - but it was no better than kidnapping.

Impressment was organized on a wide scale during the wars of William III and Queen Anne in the late 1600's and early 1700's. In the minds of many people of the time, impressment was a necessary fact of life - men were either 'prest' into the Navy unconstitutionally or it went short staffed.

A victim of impressment was not always destined to fight in European wars. Certainly most of those taken went on to sea action in famous battles - in 1804 the Battle of Trafalgar was less than a year away. But in later years a recruit could also find himself stationed at Penetanguishene, Upper Canada.

Penetanguishene was the strategic base established in 1817, built to maintain the British navy on the Upper Great Lakes. Although the War of 1812 - 14 had ended three years earlier, relations between Upper and Lower Canada, Britain and the United States were still strained.

Now, in the days when armed conflict between Canada and America are long gone, the base at Penetanguishene has been restored and reconstructed as the Historic Naval and Military Establishments.

Sailors still walk the dusty paths past white-washed buildings, and the wife of the Fort-Adjutant tends her garden. The site, open daily 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. until Labour Day, is a living example of life on a naval base (1817-1832) and a military garrison (1828-1856).

The scene differs in one way from the past of over a century ago. The sailors who now walk the paths of Penetanguishene are university students employed for the summer - none have been pressed into the service. It is however, a strong possibility that some of the sailors posted there in the 1800's were pressed.

ARDA helps rural moves

ARDA's program of financial assistance for low income rural people who wish to relocate for better employment opportunities has been extended for another year with funding of $80,000.

Announcement of the Agricultural and Rural Development Agreement project approval was made by the Hon. William G. Newman, Ontario's minister of agriculture and food, and the Hon. Marcel Lessard, Canada's minister of regional economic expansion.

Under the program, families may receive up to $25,000 to help them move to another location in the province. Counselling is provided by rural development officers and rural development counsellors of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

In the past five years, the mobility and adjustment program has given nearly $150,000 in assistance to more than 60 individuals and families. Cost is shared on a 50-50 basis by the provincial and federal governments under ARDA.

Press gangs were feared in all coastal towns. The gangs never used firearms. They were paid five pounds per man and a dead recruit was worthless - but cudgels were liberally used. Not all those pressed were exactly fit for life at sea either - at five pounds each the gangs ignored details.

Complaints from officers were common: "All the rag-tag that can be picked up - the scum of the world, men more fit for a hospital than a ship, sad wretches, miserable poor creatures" were some of the descriptions, but "like galleys, a man-of-war refused nothing."

Pressed men were able to appeal their fate (there were also exemptions for some) but few took advantage of the chance. They either didn't have the money to go through legal channels, or they were out on the high seas before it ever occurred to them to do so.

The legal question of impressment was a much-discussed issue in the 19th century. The 1815 edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica states flatly that: "After all, this method of manning the navy is to be considered defensible from public necessity, to which all private considerations must give way."

Impressment as an effective way to build-up the navy faded out of practice after the defeat of Napoleon at Waterloo in 1815, as demands on British naval strength lessened. The only other major conflict of the 19th century, the Crimean War, did not involve major naval action.

Impressment would later be replaced by the more humane conscription. The men of Britain's coastal towns must have been relieved about that.

Quinte News Round Up

Deseronto's ex-police constable, George Kewley was sworn into office in Pictou last Thursday by Judge Wilfrid Lane.

Constable Kewley replaces Harry Sisty who resigned from the Pictou force earlier this month.

The skeletons of three or four persons found at Log Cabin Point near Outlet Beach early in July have been identified by the Centre of Forensic Sciences in Toronto as being at least 100 years old.

The staff at the Forensic Centre identified the remains of three, or possibly four persons of different ages.

There were bones from a newborn infant, less than a month old, from two children one aged six to eight years and the other between three and six years old. The other skeleton was that of a North American Indian male aged between 45 and 55, and five foot eight inches tall.

No cause of death has been established, but the appearance of the bones and their location would suggest that there was a burial ground in the area.

Two Unidentified Flying Objects were reported last week from the Wellington area.

The craft were reported to be hovering in the vicinity of MacDonald's Island for about 15 minutes. They were said to be reddish in colour and about a quarter the size of the moon.

Fred Bailey, who reported the sighting said he saw similar objects in the same area three years ago.

Mrs. Bruce Cuthill of Deseronto Road, Napanee, won the title of Potato Queen at Napanee Fair last weekend.

In recent years, the Potato King of the fair has been Ray Perry, but Mr. Perry did not compete this year and Mrs. Cuthill became the new winner.

Mrs. Cuthill won her championship with a peck of red potatoes. Mrs. William Wagar of Newburgh placed second.

Mrs. Cuthill also won first prize with her onions, African marigolds and a bouquet of cut flowers.

The provincial government had allotted $191,000 to municipalities in Prince Edward-Lennox riding under the title drainage act.

The drainage grants are distributed as follows: $35,000 to Adolphstown; $25,000 to South Fredericksburg; $24,100 to Hollowell; $20,000 to South Marysburg; $18,000 to Richmond Township; $16,200 to North Fredericksburg; $12,000 to North Marysburg and $10,000 each to Ameliasburgh, Athol, Ernestown and Hillier.

Many people are concerned about increasing vandalism but few take action. Mr. William Boulbee of Bloomfield is an exception. He has offered to provide a house watching service for Prince Edward homeowners.

He is offering to check on houses once a week while the owner is away, and to arrange such extra jobs as feeding pets and watering plants. Mr. Boulbee feels that such a service would be a deterrent to would be vandals who would find it more difficult to spot which houses were empty.

Prize lists for the annual three day Pictou Fair have been circulated this week, ready for the scheduled opening on Friday, September 10.

A new classification system will be in operation this year and half of the prize money will be paid by the Canadian department of agriculture (livestock) and the other half by the Prince Edward Agricultural Society and the Livestock Branch of the Ontario department of agriculture and food.

A new Roller Skating Club has been organized in Pictou. The club is being organized by William Roney, who recently accepted a donation of $50 from Sam Gentile, a Pictou realtor who is eager to get things rolling.

Lessons start next week at the County Centre. Instructions will be given by Frank Wall.

Rain spoiled the first day of Napanee's sidewalk sale last Thursday. The sale was the first to be organized by the Downtown Merchant's Association and involved closing Dundas Street for three blocks.

Merchants located on the three block site had goods on display on the sidewalks and conducted sales inside the stores. Many other merchants from outside the downtown area came to sell to the expected crowds, who were kept at home by the weather.

Eaton's chain of department stores is to sell the Friendly Façils of Prince Edward County. The idea is being promoted by two men, Roger St. Jean from Sudbury and George Lepage, a native of North Bay.

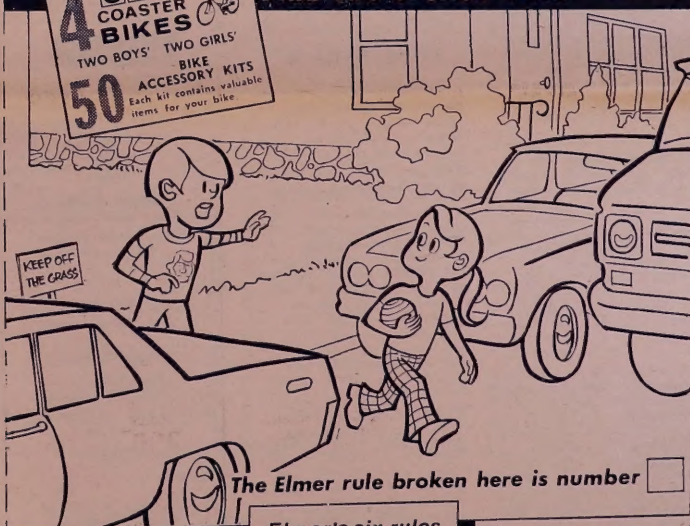

Based on the recent fad craze for pet racks, the friendly façils are riding the bandwagon, with educational overtones.

Old pea viners rust away on the May cross road in Prince Edward County, a relic of changing farm technology. Peas were originally pulled or cut and the whole vine hauled by horse and wagon to the factory where the peas were extracted from the pods. In a move to save transportation costs and to get rid of the piles of peas silage around the factories, the viners were set up in central location and the pea vines taken to them by trucks from the fields. The extracted peas were then transported to the factory. A few years ago the pea combines were introduced and the whole extraction process now takes place in the field. It maybe that mobile factories will be the next development, followed, perhaps, by everyone going to the field to pull their own and we will be all around the circle.

More funds for retarded

Increased work and training opportunities for the mentally retarded were announced today by the Honourable James Taylor, Q.C., Minister of Community and Social Services.

A total of 144 additional training places throughout the province were provided in nine workshop expansion programs approved in principle during June.

These include extensions to work shops in Timmins, Haileybury, and expanded programs in Brampton, Cochrane, Oakville and Sundridge workshops, a Life Skills program in Listowel and a protected business - the Wooden Toy Company in Oshawa.

"The Ministry already funds 137 workshops for the disabled in the province," explained Mr. Taylor. "This expansion program is part of our total commitment to integrated community living for the mentally retarded. We cannot expect people to work in the community unless we are prepared to provide them with the tools not only to compete but to achieve their highest personal potential".

During the current fiscal year, the Ministry hopes to create a broad range of community programs for the mentally retarded, including 1,000 accommodation places, 155 developmental day care places, 755 workshop and training places, 57 community support projects and an additional 62 protective services workers to help bring clients and services together. The funds for these services are part of a budget of $172 million, providing a wide range of programs that include residential facilities currently serving 7,000 mentally retarded people in the province.

Ellis on dairy problems

In a recent address to Hastings County Holstein Club, Jack Ellis, MP, claimed that most Canadians don't have any idea of the problems faced by the province's dairy farmers. In his opening remarks he pointed out that a large part of the solution to Canada's dairy problem was to make the general public aware of the importance of the dairy industry, beyond a choice of milk or milk substitute in their coffee.

Mr. Ellis had statistics on hand to emphasize his points. He said that if every Canadian drank 10 oz. of milk each day, the total consumption would rise by 10%. That means that Canadians, on the average, consume only 9 oz. per day. Since many people drink much more than that, what is wrong. Mr. Ellis was emphatic in his conclusion that the milk industry does not receive enough promotion, and as a consequence people take dairy products for granted. He pointed out that every so often one is swamped by ads in all the media for, say, Special 6 year old Whisky. Which means that six years ago, somebody made too much whisky. Whisky isn't dumped, and production isn't cut back. Promotion sells the excess product.

According to Mr. Ellis, there is a ready use for surplus milk in the cheese manufacturing business. About 50 million pounds of cheese are imported into Canada every year. Allowing that about 10 million pounds of this is specialty cheese and worthwhile, it still leaves an enormous quantity which is being dumped on the Canadian market.

In view of the fact that the Ontario dairy farmer has improved his production efficiency by a staggering 86% in the past 10 years, the government should provide for an industry that has a capacity for handling 100% of Canada's needs, with a ten per cent over-run for export.

Mr. Ellis also suggested the use of vending machines in all places where people use coffee or soft drink machines to dispense milk. He remarked that the advertising programs of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board are extremely well done, but said that a real hot shot advertising man with ideas could improve the sales of milk and dairy products by a fantastic amount.

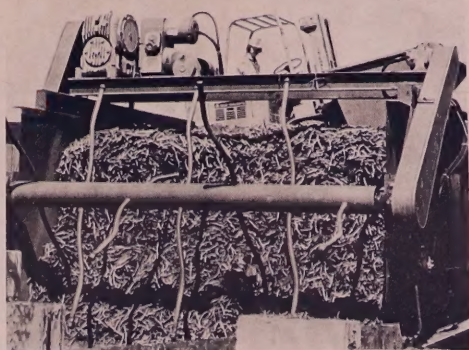

Picton curfew?

Picton Mayor Donald King advised the town council on Tuesday that he will call for a curfew in the town by the end of August if the rate of vandalism in the town still remains at its present high level.

There has been no curfew in the town since wartime, when youths under the age of 18 were not allowed out of doors after 10 p.m. unless accompanied by their parents.

Mayor King stated that he was deeply concerned to see young people walking along the streets of the town late at night. It would seem impossible for their parents to know where they are. Vandalism is not a problem in Picton alone, it has become a province wide head-ache.

Mayor King stated that at least part of the blame rests with the light sentences given by the courts for vandalism. He suggested that vandals who damage town property be made to work for the town for 30 days doing jobs that taxpayers normally have to pay to get done.

Beans by the billions are arriving at Metcalfe Foods Ltd. plant in Deseronto. Roy Dixon operates the hopper truck that dumps the beans into the "Eventlo Feeder". This device ensures a continuous flow of beans into the conveyor carrying them into the factory where they will be processed and frozen.

A Metcalfe spokesman told the Scanner that their bean crop this year is excellent. The rain and cooler weather were perfect for this crop. Metcalfe's pea crop was about normal and if we get some good, hot, sunny weather, the corn and tomatoes should be outstanding.

NDP criticise wheat waste

Donald MacDonald, MPP, the Official Opposition Critic for the Ministry of Agriculture and Food recently made statements regarding the practice of using bread as a loss leader in supermarkets.

Mr. MacDonald claims that the Ontario ministry is still operating back in the horse and buggy era. In spite of the fact that in 1963 the ministry's name was changed from the traditional Agriculture to that of Agriculture and Food, a change which signified that the concerns of the ministry covered not only the small percentage of food producers, but the 100% of the population that consumed the produce.

Mr. MacDonald pointed out that business practices in the food industry cry out for creative action. The practice of using bread as a loss leader in supermarkets is a classic example.

General Bakeries Industries Wander Bread for Dominion Stores. Interestingly enough, both are owned by Argus Corporation, that massive Canadian conglomerate. J.P. Wygant, President of General Bakeries, told the company's annual meeting on June 29, 1976, that because the supermarkets, including Dominion, are using bread as a loss leader, bread is being dumped by the ton by stores that cannot compete and losses to smaller stores and the major bakery chains are phenomenal. The result, states Mr. Wygant, is that "the bakery industry in Canada is wasting more wheat and other basic commodities in the form of stale returns that are dumped or sold as animal feed than some countries eat".

This is a scandalous situation. The Ontario Food Council laments the use of loss leaders. So does the Ontario Federation of Agriculture. These losses are passed back, in one way or another, to the farmer who produces the food.

Mr. MacDonald said that the practice of using bread as a loss leader is banned in Quebec, and, he asks, "Why not in Ontario?"

Barbershop moved after 30 years

Leo Palmer, well known Deseronto barber, carried on his business in the same location on Deseronto's Main Street for over 30 years.

This month he moved from his old stand to a new shop he has set up beside his home at 88 Brant Street.

Leo was born in Deseronto and moved to Toronto when he was 15 years old. He took up the trade of barbering in the city, and after 15 years he moved back to Deseronto where he purchased Mr. Cole's barber's shop on Main St. Mr. Palmer set up his own business in the same location.

Mr. Palmer's new shop beside his house is bright, and as he puts it a "lot handier".

The change in location is reflected in the change of hours. Mr. Palmer is going into part time barbering and will only be shaving the heads of Deserontions on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays.

The new shop is open for business promptly at 9:00 a.m. on these mornings.

Reading room nears completion

Work is continuing at the library in preparation for the fall opening of its new reading room and "historical materials" section.

The library has already received many interesting contributions and helpful bits of information regarding the history of Deseronto and its vicinity; and welcomes any other materials or information which could be utilized and/or displayed in the new section.

The library will be closed for holidays on August 23rd and will open again on September 8th.

Deseronto youths charged

Three Deseronto youths appeared in Belleville provincial court on Monday charged with break, enter and theft in connection with the robbery of Malley's Variety Store on the town's Main Street on July 22. Several cartons of cigarettes were stolen and $400 cash.

Four youths were charged; James Earl Harrow, 16 of Maple Avenue, Terry Garnet Lloyd 17, of Green St., and Daniel Clarence Hill of Mill St., appeared in the provincial court. The fourth youth was a juvenile charged under the Juvenile Delinquents Act and dealt with in the Belleville Family Court.

Officer begins duties

Constable Brian Barry Cowan began his duties with the Deseronto Police Force this week.

Constable Cowan is from Belleville and served for 2 years with the Metro Toronto Force. He comes to the Deseronto Police Department from a summer's work at the Outlet Provincial Park, where he was employed as a security guard.

Constable Cowan is married and has two children.

The three youths who appeared before Judge J.L. Clendenning refused to choose their method of trial, and the Judge ruled that they had elected trial by jury.

Indian lacrosse scheduled

Tyendinaga Mohawk Recreation Committee are organizing a Lacrosse Tournament for Saturday, August 28 in the Deseronto Community Centre.

Tyendinaga wrought iron business expanding rapidly

Brant Industries, located at the north end of Church Lane on the Tyendinaga Reserve, has made a proposal to the Department of Indian Affairs to make another expansion to their business.

Their first building was started one year ago and had an area of 2,475 square feet. In this they expanded their wrought iron manufacturing process, which they had begun in the sheds and barns of the original farm. They quickly out-grew this building and an addition was added making a total of 7,000 square feet. They presently employ about twenty people.

The new proposal is for another building of 11,000 square feet, which will enlarge the working space for the wrought iron process and provide extra space for the manufacture of a new line of products. The new line is to be macrame type goods.

If the help from the Department of Indian Affairs in the way of a business loan is forthcoming, they will need to hire about twenty more employees owner Paul Brant told the Scanner.

Tyendinaga Reserve's most rapidly expanding business, Brant Industries, has already out-grown this new building and is planning to construct another

Dont' know if I'll ever learn sense. Last Saturday I was planning to mow one of my fields, but when I got up, the weather didn't look too promising to me. Well, I figger I'm getting to be too technology minded nowadays, cause like a fool I turns on the radio. The weather man told me right plain that it was going to be cloudy with sunny periods for Saturday, and sunny with cloudy periods for Sunday. Sure didn't look that way ter me. Still I hangs around and waits to see if it'n's going ter improve any. Three times I checked on the radio and got the same forecast. Well, I still weren't too happy bout it, but I went ahead and mowed anyways, figgering that they were more likely ter be right than me. That's why I say I'm lacking in sense, a bigger fool never walked. I been kicking myself ever since. I mows the field and no sooner did I drive the tractor into the barnyard than down comes the rain. It rained steady all day over my way. Sunday weren't too much better. Now I got a great crop of green manure in that field instead of feed fer my livestock this coming winter. I reckon the price of feed is going ter go right out of sight come February. I figger I'd best buy ter early and store for the season, stead of waiting ter buy later on.

That'll learn me not to trust them weathermen when my own good sense tells me the weather's planning ter do something different from what they say. Been reading in the paper about this Man trip as the US of A got all arranged fer their bicentennial. Ain't too clear what they aims to find out with their little machines up there. Seems to me that they'll end up doing the same thing as they done on the moon, they sent up all this here hardware and then left it there cos it were too expensive to bring it back home again. Now and again I looks at the old moon shining up there and I thinks of all that scrap metal lying around and looking untidy. The Almighty must be kind of cheesed off at them Yankees dumping all that litter right on His doorstep as it were. T'ain't no wonder that He's getting his own back with all this here rain - is it now? I reckon as I might be a touch fed up myself if it'n I were in His shoes.

Now they're shooting things up at Mars. Maybe all these here UFO's as keep flying round the county and back north have got something to do with it. Maybe them Martians is aiming ter dump some of their own scrap metal on us. Can't blame 'em can you? Just figger how you'd feel if it'n the neighbour come along and unloaded his garbage on you. To only reasonable that you might get the inclination to do a bit of reciprocal dumping back on him.

Talking about neighbours puts me in mind of a real good story I heard from Harry up the road last week. You probably ain't going ter believe it, but by gol, it's true, every word of it.

Seems as these tourists was driving by his place when they sees his old draft horse out in the pasture field. This old horse is near to being a museum piece it's that old, so he's kind of retired you might say. Anyhow, the old feller was standing there, knee deep in lush green grass, dreaming his dreams when these city folks spotted him. Well now, they couldn't have had too much to do with horses, because by gol, they comes rushing into Harry's barnyard, hollering as there's something terrible wrong with the horse, and he should get ter vet. When Harry asks them what exactly is wrong, they telled him that the old horses' whinits was hanging down, almost to the ground, and they figgered as he'd stepped on himself and sort of pulled it out by the roots.

I'm telling you, Harry near bust when he told me the story. I guess he managed ter convince them that the horse was alright, but it sure goes ter show that us country folks can still teach them tourists a thing or two. Still, that's living, ain't it?

BINGO!

Prominent Indian leader appointed Regional Director General of Indian Affairs

Fred Kelly, an Ojibway Indian from Sabakung Indian Reserve in North-western Ontario, has been appointed Director General of Indian and Eskimo Affairs for the Ontario Region. The appointment by the Public Service Commission, following a competition, was announced by the Honourable Judd Buchanan, Minister of Indian and Northern Affairs.

Mr. Kelly, President of Council Treaty No. 3 Ontario, and former special assistant to the President of the National Indian Brotherhood, becomes the first Indian to assume the position of Director General for the Ontario Region.

In accepting the appointment, Mr. Kelly said "I look upon my appointment as Regional Director General not as a personal triumph, but as a collective breakthrough for the Indian of Ontario. It is historical and logical that the Indian people of this province should have one of their own at such a senior decision making position."

He then went on to say, "I have no illusions that this will be an easy task, but I am satisfied that the two most important elements - support from the Indian people and their leaders on the one hand and support from the Minister, his Deputy and his Assistant Deputy on the other have been expressed and are therefore forthcoming."

Mr. Kelly will succeed Mr. H.B. Rodine who has been with the Department since 1956. Mr. Rodine has been re-assigned within the Department. His responsibilities will involve liaison with other federal departments and the provincial government to ensure the delivery of co-ordinated services to the Indian people of the Province of Ontario.

As Director General, Mr. Kelly will direct and co-ordinate the activities of more than 1,000 departmental employees dispersed throughout the Province.

In addition to experience with Indian associations at the grass roots and executive levels, Mr. Kelly has been involved in community development activities for the Ontario Department of Public Welfare. Prior to that he taught elementary school in Hudson, Ontario.

The new Director General of the Ontario Region received his primary education at St. Mary's Indian Residential School, Ontario and continued secondary studies at the Chippewa Secondary School, North Bay, Ontario, completing his senior matriculation at Fort Frances High School, Fort Frances, Ontario.

Mr. Kelly studied political science at Lakehead University where he was chairman of the University's Cross-cultural Program.

Mr. Kelly's appointment as Ontario's Regional Director of Indian Affairs represents another step forward in the Department's commitment to consult with and involve Indian people at appropriate levels of operation and decision making.

Welcoming Mr. Kelly to his new post, Mr. Judd Buchanan, Minister of Indian and Northern Affairs stated: "We are particularly gratified that the appointment of Fred Kelly as Director General of Indian Affairs, Ontario, was supported by the Indian Associations of Ontario and is in harmony, not only with departmental objectives, but with the wishes of Indians in the Province."

What to do at the zoo? The complete African safari

The lions watch the zebras, the zebras watch the lions and the people watch the lions and the zebras, with only moats separating all of them. Because the moats are effective but practically invisible, the whole picture is almost what it would be on the Serengeti Plains of eastern Africa. To complete the illusion, the apple trees have been carefully pruned to look like African acacia trees. And it's all at Metro Toronto Zoo, 25 miles northeast of Toronto.

The animals live as normally as possible in naturalistic enclosures. Food for the giraffes is hung high in a tree, encouraging them to stretch their long necks as they would in the wild. The baboons have to scamper about looking for their monkey chow which has been deliberately scattered.

A walk through the extensive poddocks allows the visitor excellent viewing of elephants, hippos, cheetahs, several species of zebra, a great pride of lions and even South African fur seals (feeding time 11:00 a.m.). Two species of rhinoceros share their 3-acre compound with waterbuck, zebras, African hamibills, vultures and crowned cranes.

Enter the huge glass-roofed African pavilion and enter a jungle - bananas in fruit, kapok trees, tamarind, rare triangular palms, exotic flowering vines and free-flying birds. The animals are exotic too - the costly bongo, the only one in Canada, young Lowland gorillas, pygmy hippos, meerkats, zorillas and bushbabies. It is a complete safari indeed!

During the summer the zoo is open from 10:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m., and until 8:00 p.m. on weekends and holidays. There is ample parking. The Zoo can also be reached by TTC buses: connections from the Warden subway all week and the Rouge Hill GO station weekends.

August and September are "Peach Time" in Ontario, the time when just about everyone is canning, freezing, making jam, or just enjoying our great Ontario peaches.

The booklet, "Peach Power," has been produced by the Consumer Section of the Ontario Food Council to provide information to consumers on peach varieties, and includes some delicious new recipes. Some of the recipes are reproduced below:

PUFFY PEACH PANCAKE

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar
4 tsp. Cinnamon
3 Ontario peaches, peeled and sliced
4 eggs, separated
 $\frac{1}{3}$ cup sugar
 $\frac{1}{3}$ cup flour
 $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. baking powder
Dash salt
 $\frac{1}{3}$ cup milk
Sour cream or vanilla ice cream (optional)

Melt butter in round 10 inch x $\frac{1}{2}$ inch ovenproof dish or skillet. Sprinkle evenly with sugar-cinnamon mixture. Top with peach slices. Bake at 400 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes.

Meanwhile, beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually beat in $\frac{1}{3}$ cup sugar until soft peaks form. Set aside. Combine flour, baking powder and salt. Blend into yolks and milk. Fold egg whites into yolk mixture. Spread evenly over peaches. Bake 20 minutes. Loosen edges, invert onto serving plate. Serves 4 to 6

PEACH CHILI SAUCE

6 Ontario peaches, peeled, coarsely chopped
14 medium tomatoes, peeled, coarsely chopped
6 pears, peeled, coarsely chopped
4 medium onions, chopped
1 sweet red pepper, cut in thin strips
2 tbsp whole pickling spice, tied in cheesecloth
3 $\frac{1}{2}$ cups brown sugar, firmly packed
2 cups cider vinegar
1 tbsp salt.

Combine all ingredients in a large saucepan. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer, stirring occasionally 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 3 hours or until thick. Remove spice bag. Fill clean, hot mason jars to $\frac{3}{4}$ inch from rim. Apply lids. Process for 10 minutes in a boiling water bath.

Seven new 40 ft. utility poles have been installed on the north side of Main Street, Deseronto. These will replace the old poles on the south side. These changes are in anticipation of the rebuilding of Main Street.

Deseronto P.U.C. Manager, Carl Kasner informed the Scanner that both Mill and Fourth Streets will require changes because of the coming street rebuilding.

Grande criticizes student teacher selection policy

"Chances are that 50 per cent of the students enrolled in Toronto Teachers Colleges for this coming September will not be the best candidates for the teaching profession" says Tony Grande, New Democratic Party MPP for Oakwood.

Mr. Grande made this statement after he learned that close to 1500 students applied to Toronto Teachers College and the College will only accept 800 of them.

This is the first year that the Ministry of Education has a policy to control the number of students that attend the Toronto College.

Mr. Grande did not take exception to limiting the number of places available at the College, what he did object to was the selection process.

"There is nothing wrong in controlling the numbers as long as the selection can be made on the basis of merit. To my knowledge, the only policy that the Teachers College follows is one of 'first come, first served'."

At a time when good teachers are badly needed in classrooms the policy of a first come, first served basis for enrollment in Teachers College is both inconsistent and discriminatory.

"It is crucial that at a time when education is 'under the gun' so to speak, every effort be made to dispel the fears that many parents have that their children are not receiving the best education possible. It makes no sense to talk about the quality of education if we don't make sure we have quality teachers in our classrooms," said Mr. Grande.

No wild pets without licence

Officials of the Ontario ministry of Natural Resources in western Ontario say that they are investigating several cases where wild coyotes have been sold as pets. Two young coyotes were seized from private homes in the Tilbury area last week.

There are regulations in Ontario which forbid the keeping of wild animals as pets without a licence. Persons convicted under this regulation face fines of up to $1,000.

The ministry of natural resources will issue such permits, but on the whole ministry officials frown on attempts to tame wild animals. It is almost impossible to successfully tame wild creatures, and they are usually released when they are full grown, but are no longer equipped to survive in the wild. Also, many families do not have their wild 'pets' given shots for rabies and distemper.

A bunch of certain shell (wampum) strings each two spans in length shall be given to each of the female families in which the chieftain titles are vested. The right of bestowing the titles shall be hereditary in the family of females legally possessing the bunch of shell strings, and the strings shall be the token that the females of the family have the ownership to the chieftainship title for all time to come, subject to certain restrictions mentioned here.

The title names of the war chiefs of the league shall be:

Ayonwehs: war chief under Takarihkan (Mohawk)
Kahonwaitron, war chief under the chief Otatsheteh (Oneida) Ayentes, war chief under chief Atotarho (Onondaga) Wenens, war chief under chief Dekonyon (Cayuga)

Shoneratowaneh, war chief under chief Skanyartariio (Seneca)

The women heirs of each head chief's title shall be the heirs of the war chiefs title of their respective chief.

The war chiefs shall be selected from the eligible sons of the female families holding the head chieftainship title.

The lineal descent of the people of the Five Nations shall run in the female line. Women shall be considered the progenitors of the Nation. They shall own the land, and the soil. Men and women shall follow the status of their mothers.

The women heirs of the chieftainship titles of the League shall be called Oiner or Otitaner (Noble) for all time to come.

Whenever an especially important matter or a great emergency is presented before the League Council and the nature of the matter affects the entire body of Five Nations, threatening their utter ruin, then the chiefs of the League must submit the matter to the decision of their people and the decision of the people shall affect the decision of the League Council. This decision shall be a confirmation of the voice of the people.

Quinte News Round Up

The Ministry of Culture and Recreation recently announced that ten Winairio grants have been awarded to projects in Hastings County. Amounts of the grants range from $9,375 to $520. The projects which received the grants in the Deseronto area were the Madoc District Hunters and Anglers Club which is to be given $3,500 for shooting equipment. Trenton Memorial Public Library will use its grant of $3,000 to buy Canadian books and periodicals.

Carl Brant of Tyendinaga Reserve has resigned his position on the Hastings County Board of Education after serving for seven years. Mr. Brant was the first Indian representative on the Board.

His position will be filled by Roger Brant, who will represent the Mohawks in future. He will be sworn in during one of the September meetings.

More than 300 railway enthusiasts descended on Picton last weekend for a meeting of the Upper Canada Railway Society which has members from all over Canada and the United States as well as from Great Britain. The event was the first time that a full passenger train had stopped in Picton since 1962.

Project CIRCLE (Community In Review, Co-operative Learning Experience) operated a booth in the Napanee Mall last Friday and Saturday and dispensed information about the human resources available in Lennox and Addington County.

Resources listed by the project include agriculture, business, arts and community organizations.

All the resources will be listed in a catalogue and distributed to schools and libraries in the fall.

Deseronto's goal has been treated to a face lift. On Tuesday afternoon, Al Blakely of Blakely's Welding and Art Brant were busy welding steel mesh on to the inside of the bars of the cells.

Police chief Carl Beattie said that it was usual for detention cells to have wire mesh over the bars to prevent prisoners from hanging themselves, or from reaching through to attack police officers on the outside.

Mr. Blakely guessed that the improvements were likely to raise the rental of the cells.

A great school bus controversy is raging in Prince Edward County, especially in the Village of Bloomfield. Douglas Caley, School Board Trustee for Bloomfield-Hallowell claims that the Board of Education panicked over cutbacks in spending and made unrealistic cuts such as reducing bus services.

The Board decided to discontinue bus services in the town of Picton, the village of Bloomfield and in Wellington.

Residents of Picton have already protested the cuts, and on Monday a second delegation appeared before the Board to protest the loss of transportation to Pinescrest School in Bloomfield for Picton and area students.

Spokesman for the group, Susan Christie, said that without transportation it might not be possible for the children to continue at Pinescrest school.

The response of the Board was generally unsympathetic. "There is a perfectly good school for your children in North Marysburg, and if it is not the Board's responsibility to transport them to another school", said Picton trustee William Lane.

SPECIAL NOTICES

WAYSIDE EVANGEL

A young woman who was a great lover of flowers had set out a rare vine at the base of a stone wall. It grew vigorously, but it did not bloom. Day after day she cultivated it and watered it; she tried in every way to coax it to blossom. One morning, as she stood disappointedly before it, her invalid neighbour, whose back lay adjoined her own, called over and said, "You can't imagine how much I have been enjoying the blooms of that vine you planted."

The owner looked and saw on the other side of the wall a mass of blooms. The vine had crept through the crevices and had flowered luxuriantly on the other side.

There is a lesson for every Christian here. So often we think our efforts are thrown away because we do not see their fruit. We need to learn that in God's service our prayers, our toil, our cares are never in vain. Somewhere our efforts bear their fruit and some hearts receive their blessing and their joy.

Well known Deseronto barber, Leo Palmer has moved his business from his old location on Deseronto Main Street, to the bright surroundings of a new shop at his home on Brant Street. This is the first time in nearly half a century that a barbershop has not been in operation in the old store near the library on Main Street.

Floor hockey proves popular

Karen Layfield, Jamie Ziemann, Steve Hefner and Dean McCann posed outside the Deseronto Community Centre with a few of the children participating in the "Action '76" Program in Deseronto.

The program is free and open to all children under 14 years of age.

Floor hockey is played in the Community Centre Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 10 to 12.

Tennis is played (including instruction) on Monday and Wednesday afternoons in the Community Centre, and the remaining times of the week.

are held for Baseball at the Public School diamond. Some adjustments have to be made to this schedule to suit the weather.

The program is co-funded by the Deseronto Recreation Committee and the Ontario Ministry of Culture and Recreation.

Generally speaking, Jack Layfield, Director of the summer Recreation Program for the town, has been disappointed by the response of the young people. However, the floor hockey and tennis programs seem to be much more popular and are being well supported.

Ontario's bullfrogs protected

New legislation has just been passed to provide all Ontario bullfrogs - not just those in Leeds and Lanark Counties - with more protection.

An open season of July 1 to October 15 now applies to all of Ontario. Until now it was legal to take and sell the amphibians outside Leeds and Lanark year-round without a licence.

The bullfrog protective legislation in Leeds and Lanark dates back at least 20 years.

Other changes in the legislation rule that the daily limit and possession limit has been lowered to 15 from 25, commercial "froggers" must have a licence to barter and sell everywhere in the province and the fee for a frogger's licence has been increased to $25 from $5.

In addition, all licence holders are now required to report their annual bullfrog harvests and sales to Ontario Natural Resources.

ON THE FARM FRONT

* by Bruce Taylor

Farmers are substantial users of, and are very dependent on, a reliable economical source of electrical energy. They have a vital interest in the Royal Commission on Electric Power Planning, known as the Porter Commission, which is looking into the long-range power planning concepts of Ontario Hydro for the period 1983-93.

The Commission, appointed by the Ontario Government, is inquiring comprehensively into Hydro's long range planning program as it relates to production of, use of, and need for electrical energy. The Commission is also evaluating the impact of these plans on planning and land use, the general economies of our society, fuel supplies for the generation of electrical power, etc.

Farmers own and use vast areas of land which are ideal places to build electric generation stations and electric power transmission corridors. These structures raise questions about air pollution affecting crops and livestock, disruption of planting and harvesting operations, severing of farm properties by right-of-ways, direct losses to farmers income and potential income, etc.

We do not yet know the long-range effects of many 500 KV transmission lines. Hydro is just now starting to do a minimum of research about this.

Farmers have a great deal at stake in this area. The Ontario Federation of Agriculture is working on behalf of its members by making presentations to the Commission.

OFA presented a preliminary brief in November 1975. Some of the points raised included the effect of Hydro's long range plans on general land use planning, the impact of Hydro structures on Class 1 and 2 farm land as per Canada Land Inventory designations and, most importantly, the impact of electric transmission and generating facilities on viable farm operations.

OFA will be making a major presentation at the formal hearings to start next winter. The content of this presentation is being arrived at by input from members and committees within OFA.

There is also a research study on behalf of and requested by farm organizations, being done by Prof. Newman Pearson. The material, when completed will be available to farm groups to aid them in preparing presentations for the Commission.

But this will not be enough. This is a political process, not just a research project. It is not enough for the farmers' concerns to be articulated once. It must be clear that many, many, farmers are concerned enough to make presentations to the Commission. Only then will the farmers' concerns be paid attention to by the Commission and by the Government.

Every county Federation of Agriculture should make a presentation. Only six counties have made preliminary presentations.

Individual farmers must be heard expressing the impact on their production facilities.

Community and social organizations must describe the impact of generation and transmission facilities on rural living in Ontario.

This opportunity to influence the future development of Hydro will probably never come again. All of Ontario's citizens should be concerned and have their say.

However, since farmers and rural residents are the ones most adversely affected by Hydro plans, they must make their concerns known to the Porter Commission both as individuals and through their local farm organizations.

This is a real opportunity for farmers to get their local Federation of Agriculture involved in having a say about what rural Ontario will be like in 1995. Let the Ontario Government and Hydro know what you really want done.

Contact your county or township Federation of Agriculture, or local, today and let's get going.

Agricultural graduates increase 10 per cent

Graduates from Ontario's colleges of agricultural technology numbered 420 this year, a 10 per cent increase over 1975. It has been announced by Ontario Agriculture and Food Minister William Newman.

Mr. Newman said about 200 of this year's graduates will take up farming as their permanent occupation and the remainder will go into agriculture-related business.

Diploma education in agriculture on and food began in Ontario in 1904. Since then the total number of graduates swelled to more than 9,000.

Mr. Newman said although 75 per cent of the graduates are from courses focusing on the primary agricultural producer, a wider range of programs is available to students, all of which "contribute to our diversified food production industry."

Helen S soon to become training ship under sail

The Helen S, a 77 year old ex-tug is presently moored off Quick's Quinte Resort at Green Point, undergoing very extensive modifications.

The master of the vessel, Bill Grimshaw has been variously described by the sailing buffs of this area as a lunatic and a genius.

The latter tribute come from no less than Angus Mowat who said that no matter what the many sceptics said, the Helen S would undoubtedly sail sentiments have also been echoed by Willis Metcalfe, an expert on Great Lakes shipping.

The reason that Mr. Grimshaw has roused such controversy is that the tug is not being re-fitted as a tug boat, but as a sailing vessel. Her proportions may not be classic; she has been fitted with four fairly short steel masts and a bow sprit and looks much more like a sailing vessel than a tug now.

For many years, the Helen S plied the water of the Great Lakes in the commercial shipping traffic. Many people can remember her in Picton harbour during her working life. Originally built in Georgian Bay, she was purchased by her present owner for scrap price, but she no longer looks like scrap. Her paintwork is immaculate, below decks the steel bulkheads have

Water will have fluoride

Although it is now several weeks since Dr. Meredith, Deseronto's only practising dentist, brought information before the town council regarding the beneficial effects on dental health obtained by fluoridation of municipal water supplies, the matter has not been forgotten.

At the regular meeting of Deseronto council held on Wednesday, August 18, the question of fluoride in the drinking water was again discussed.

The council decided to go ahead with the plans to arrange for fluoridation of the water supply. The matter is to be discussed in detail at the next meeting.

Deseronto population up 74

In a letter to Deseronto Town Council last week, Bob McMillan, Assistant Chief of the Health Department, advised that the results of the last census indicated that the population of Deseronto has increased by 74 persons.

The last figure showed a population of 1803 people in the town, but the new figure indicates that the number has risen to 1877 persons.

Councillor Brooks suggested that any increase in population be reflected in the Town's Per Capita grant application form changed to reflect the increase.

No cat control

It looks as though Deseronto will not have a by-law after all. At the recent council meeting Councillor Cole advised the rest of Council that he felt that it would be almost impossible to enforce such a by-law.

Napanee fires Police Chief

Napanee Town Council fired their Police Chief at last week's council meeting, because of the results of an Ontario Police Commission hearing into the morale of the Napanee Police Department.

The Commission's report recommended that Chief Paquette should be dismissed because of his poor leadership qualities and lack of management ability.

This was the only recommendation contained in the report. In essence, the conclusion of the Commission was that Chief Paquette was unable to cope with the entire situation in the town of Napanee.

Council dismissed the Chief with regret, saying that he had been a good policeman but seemed to lack the power to win the respect of his men when he held the position of Chief.

Puppeteers return

The "Deckhands Puppet Theatre" will be returning to Deseronto to perform two more puppet plays, entitled "The Three Little Pigs" and "The Space Nuts".

The puppet plays will be held at the Library on Monday, August 23 at 11:00 a.m.

See in the paper as another shop is closing up on Deseronto Main Street. I sure hope the rumours I've been hearing are true, and that the store isn't going to stay empty.

I remember Deseronto when all them stores were busy, and more back behind what's now the Main Street. It sure seems a shame to see how the town has shrunk, when a hundred years ago it could easily have grown into the financial capital of Ontario like Toronto did. Sure glad it didn't go that far though.

Still and all, it would be nice to see a few more stores opening up there. I remember following some tourists up the street last fall, they'd come up from one of them fancy boats in the marina, and they were sayin' the place looked like a ghost town on a movie set. It made my blood boil to hear them, and to remember what used to be, even though I don't live in the town.

Same goes for Picton, why that town were a lot busier when I were a young lad than it is now, I can remember real good how the farmers used to come in on a Saturday night on their wagons, and leave them down in the stable by the creek. Many's the time I rode in with my dad or grandpa.

All this fuss in Picton over busing the children to school is something new. Why, I used to walk over a mile to school when I were right little. Used to go to that little one room stone school house up the road from here, the one that's been turned into a sort of a cottage by some city folks. Weren't too bad in the summer, but by golly, in the winter it was something fierce. My big brother went to school in Picton at the time and he used to drive in on the cutter. I was always kind of mad that when my turn came, dad decided that he couldn't spare the horse for the whole day, and I had to stay in town with my aunt during the week.

Now they're all complaining because the town young uns have to walk to school. Seems to me, that if'n the latest figures are right, and there ain't as much oil as they'd figured, folks is going to have to walk a lot further than that!

Elmo give me the devil for telling that horse story last week, even though she knew it were true. She's back to supervising what I write, to make sure it's fit for a family newspaper, but it won't last long, case picking time she forget for sure. she'll forget for sure.

Somebody told me that Orval Brant were in the hospital last week with a heart attack or something. I sure hope he's feeling better, because I heard on the grapevine as if he were being blamed for writing my column, and that's enough to give anybody a heart attack. Anyway he don't spell Orville the way I do, and I guess he could probably write a whole lot better, so I hope he's up and around real soon.

Saw a picture of that son of his, young Cubby when I took my column into the Scanner office. Seems as the girls had taken it but it weren't clear enough to use in the paper. Anyway, there was Cubby, riding down the Main Street on a little lawn mower. Why he were bigger than the machine. Right there I decided that the town should oughter buy a bigger machine or else put that young feller on a diet. Seems as I was right, I heard this week that the council had decided to buy a new brush hog for the town. Now maybe there ain't no connection, but there again, maybe it were easier to do that than to get young Cubby thin! Still, that's life, ain't it?

TO THE EDITOR.....

Last week a lot of newspaper space was given to announcing the fact that the barber shop was moving.

I congratulate the barber for pulling out of the business section of town and operating out of his home. It was a very economic move - if you can get away with it.

But what is so special about barbers and hairdressers that they are allowed to escape from the expense of operating a business in the high tax business core of the town? Why can't this privilege be extended to the other business men in the community whether they retail a product or a service?

The Doctors and the Dentist could operate out of their homes if they chose to do so. The Jeweller could sell out of his living room. The used car dealer could operate off his front lawn and the garage mechanic out of his own garage at home. The truckers could take their fleet of big rig trucks home at night. We could go on and on and probably eliminate most of the business section.

Look around and count the number of commercial units or places of business that have become empty or have been converted to residential or some other function. I count nine. Every time a store becomes empty or is converted to another use, there is a noticeable decrease in pedestrian traffic on that part of the street. Traffic that is so important to the remaining businesses.

Business draws business. Eatons always builds near Simpsons. At the rate Deseronto's commercial section has eroded in the last five years there soon will be only two shops left - the grocery store to feed the poor souls who can't get out of town like the other folks do, and the bank for cashing relief cheques.

We can only hope the old barber shop doesn't receive the same fate as the old beauty parlor.

Community TV now in Picton

Cameramen and interviewers from Quinte Television are presently moving around Prince Edward County, making films of local authors. A series of programmes on the writers of Prince Edward County is planned.

Although the programmes do not always show professional polish, they are of local interest. Angus Mowat, who was interviewed recently, invited the camera crew on board his boat for the interview.

So far the programmes are seen only in the town of Picton. Cable TV is not yet available in the outlying districts.

Programmes are shown on Tuesday at 8 p.m. on Cable 9, and are often repeated on Wednesdays at the same time.

HAPPENINGS

Deseronto

by Kay Hood

Congratulations to Susan and Daniel Jackson who were married at the Church of the Redeemer Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sevcik of Bromelae are spending a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Mac Millan.

Miss Debbie McTaggart has returned from a holiday in Glendale, California. She was visiting her Aunt and Uncle Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Slater.

The guest of Mrs. E. Roach for two weeks was Mrs. Frances Grace (nee Reddy). Mrs. Grace, a former resident of Deseronto comes to visit with Mrs. Roach and other friends in the area each summer.

Mrs. A. Sly of Thomas St. flew home after a six week visit with her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sly, MaryAnne and Billy in Hampton, N.B.

The sympathy of the residents of Deseronto goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McCauley, Marysville, in the loss of their son. Mrs. McCauley is former teacher at the Deseronto Public School.

Mrs. Ted Murphy, Dundas St., Deseronto, her daughter, Marie Murphy of Kingston visited Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Burns, Strabane, Ireland, recently. During their last week they were joined by her son, John Murphy of Peterborough who had been studying at a German University. She said that she enjoyed her first flight, the country-side was beautiful and she was very happy to hear their friends again.

Our best wishes to those confined to hospital or home because of illness or accidents. Mrs. S. Clous, Sr., Mrs. Floyd Martin, Kingston General Hospital; Miss May Mundi, Lenoxco, in L & A hospital; Mr. Orville Brant, at home now

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Murphy are vacationing at West Lake. We understand that it is their first attempt at camping. Maybe next year Mr. Murphy will stay in the boat when he goes fishing, especially when he is fully clothed!

The winner of the Quinte Link Rebekah Lodge #390 50-50 Draw was Mr. Ed Leonard of 9 Holden St., St. Catharines.

With Mrs. E. Martin as Conventer, residents of Quinte Beach Nursing Home enjoyed a picnic supper on Thursday, August 12. Representatives of all Churches in Town, the Reserve and Marysville, provided a delicious assortment of sandwiches, cookies, cakes, tea and coffee for what is becoming an annual event. Mrs. Bette Helman, Administrator expressed her thanks to the ladies on behalf of the residents. A sing-song of old favorites and sacred music was enjoyed. Residents at Mrs. MacGillivray, Mill St. and Mrs. Benn, Thomas St. E., were invited guests.

Mrs. Helman also expressed the hope that an auxiliary might be formed. Some residents who have lived in this area do have visitors, under supervision some can get out in nice weather for a walk. But many are confined to wheel chairs of their bed and appreciate a visit, a chat, a new magazine with lots of pictures, books with large print. Someone to care. An hour or two once a month is not too much to ask. So, ladies and gentlemen of Deseronto, when or if you are called, don't say no, rather say, what can I do?

been cleaned and the interior fittings are beginning to take shape.

Eventually the master hopes to use the Helen S as a working vessel, not as a pleasure craft. He hopes to train young people to sail on her, and to set up what will be, in effect, a floating marine repair shop.

"I already have all the equipment. I had to have it to fix her up," he said. Mr. Grimshaw plans to sail his vessel on the Great Lakes doing repair work as he goes.

Indeed, Mr. Grimshaw's unconventional ideas do not stop at putting sails on a tug, he has many others. For example, he plans to use silica sand for ballast, and for sandblasting. When of his ballast is used up it will be a simple matter to replace it with ordinary sand, and then to stack up on silica sand when necessary.

The boat will have a greenhouse, and he hopes to grow a considerable amount of the crew's fresh food there. The greenhouse will be fertilized by the effluent left over after the contents of the boat's holding tanks have been anaerobically digested to produce the gas methane, which will be burned on board to provide most of the energy requirements of the boat.

The Helen S will also have a fireplace which will provide winter heat, because Mr. Grimshaw plans to live aboard year round.

All in all, she will be a most unusual vessel.

The Helen S leaves Green Point shortly. She will be leaving the Quinte area entirely in September and will over winter at Port Credit.

Bill Grimshaw plans to have her finished by next spring, and to sail her on the Great Lakes next summer.

Dry flowers now for winter

Dried flowers are becoming increasingly popular since they last indefinitely and require minimum care.

For best results, leaves must be cut when they are at their best, and flowers just before they are fully open.

To dry green leaves, mix equal parts of pure glycerin with water. Pound the cut ends of the stems to crush them. This allows the leaves and branches to absorb the mixture through the stems. Place the mixture in a narrow container and immerse the stems in it. Then put the container in a sunny place for about ten days.

Drying flowers is a little more complicated. To dry them successfully requires silica gel, available through drug stores and hobby shops.

Place the flower on a base of silica gel powder. Then gently sift the powder

Back to school vision

Four out of ten Canadian children are visually handicapped for adequate school achievement, according to the President of the Ontario Association of Optometrists.

"Numerous requirements are necessary to provide efficient vision, and these must be considered in a complete vision analysis, especially for the school child," said the President, Dr. R. Black, at the Annual Meeting of the Ontario Association of Optometrists.

The most basic needs for adequate vision are near vision, distant vision, binocular co-ordination and adequate field of vision. Near vision means the ability to focus and see clearly and comfortably with both eyes and each eye separately at a distance of about 15 inches. This is the distance at which most school work is done. Distant vision refers to the same ability as needed for near vision but for a distance of 20 feet or more. This is necessary to see the chalkboard, to enjoy motion pictures and TV and to engage in sports. Binocular co-ordination refers to the ability to make the two eyes work together. This is necessary for art work, handicrafts and play activities as well as to read efficiently. Adequate field of vision refers to the ability to see to both sides and up and down while focusing on a small target. This saves unnecessary eye and head movements and is essential for participation in sports and for personal safety.

Eighty per cent of school work depends on vision. Knowing this, it is easy to understand why good vision is so important and why suspect symptoms should not be ignored.

Architectural exhibit

Our local architectural heritage will be the subject of exploration during the exhibition 'Decline and Fall: The Architecture of Kingston and Frontenac County' at the Agnes Etherington Art Centre, August 15 to October 3. It is a "heritage whose extent and quality residents at best take for granted, at worst consider an impediment to progress" say the organizers of the show from the Frontenac Historical Foundation.

Decline and Fall was prepared with the support of the Ontario Heritage Foundation.

Old-fashioned flowers wanted

Do you remember your grandmother or your mother's home garden? What herbs and spices did she plant and what uses did she find for them? Were certain plants grown to dye clothing, others for medicines, and still others for preserving foods, if so, what were they? What flowers grew, where was the garden planted in relation to the house, what houseplants were kept?

Jane Sledge of the 'Historic Hastings Program of the Hastings County Museum is interested in your memories and recollections. She is preparing a travelling display on nineteenth century gardens which will be shown in display cases in the nine towns which are a part of the museum's exhibition circuit. If you have "traditional" plants growing in your garden, your grandmother's special recipes for preserving or reminiscences that would be of interest, please give Jane a call at 962-2329 or write the Hastings County Museum at 257 Bridge St., E., Belleville, Ontario.

Quinte News Round Up

So far there have been no reported cases of St. Louis encephalitis this year in Ontario, and if the weather remains cool, it is unlikely that the disease will occur in the province this season, according to health department officials.

An experimental program which involves planting chickens in likely areas, so that mosquitoes will bite them and transmit the virus to them if it is in the area, has so far proved negative. Dr. Barbara Blake who organized the program, refers to the chickens as "sitting ducks", but so far none of them have contracted the virus.

St. Louis encephalitis caused a number of deaths in the Windsor area last year, and the monitoring of the disease has concentrated in western Ontario.

Dr. Andrew Rhodes, medical director of laboratory services, said that the disease is often incorrectly diagnosed.

The new tennis courts under construction in the Bloomfield Mill Pond park will be completed in September.

The courts, funded completely by private donations, club donations and a Wintario grant, cost a total of $22000.

Once open the courts will be open to all Prince Edward tennis players, not just Bloomfield residents, for a small court fee.

The Pictou detachment of the OPP now has its own patrol boat. The 20-foot fibre glass vessel was designed for marine patrol work and was used at the Olympic Games. The boat will be kept in a ministry of transport garage near Bloomfield. It will be used for checking other vessels to make sure that the required safety equipment is on board.

Lennox and Addington County Council honoured Judge G.F. Smith last week on his retirement after serving the county for 25 years.

Judge Smith who will retire on Sept. 1, received a portable weather station as a gift.

During his tenure in Lennox and Addington, Judge Smith also served with the family court for 12 years without charge.

Judge Ronald Baxter, a senior provincial court judge, predicted last week that unless the government provides more stringent controls over rowdiness in provincial parks, the facilities may have to be closed.

In ruling on a case in which a police officer was assaulted at the Outlet Provincial Park, Judge Baxter expressed sympathy for the conservation officers who work in the parks.

The judge told the court that he feels that the law is too weak to allow officers to evict troublemakers, without applying other laws, which often fail to stand up in court.

The person charged with assault was declared not guilty. The judge said that he felt a charge of disturbing the peace might have been considered as more appropriate.

The busing controversy still rages in Prince Edward County. The latest study shows that some parents cheat, and give false addresses so that their children can attend Pinecrest School in Bloomfield, instead of going to Queen Elizabeth School in Pictou.

The real bone of contention in the debate rests with the alleged difference in the standard of education between the two schools. Pinecrest has a far better reputation in the county than Queen Elizabeth, one which dates back for about ten years.

For the first time trustees from Athol admitted that their school, too, has Pictou children attending, but they would not reveal their true addresses when questioned.

Approximately 20 parents attended the Board meeting in an attempt to persuade the Board to reverse the decision on busing Pictou school children. The Board did not receive their petition very sympathetically.

More hospital cutbacks

Ontario Hospital Association Director, R. Alan Hay, warns that many hospitals across Ontario will be forced into further staff and service cuts this fall as a result of the Provincial Government's cost constraints.

In a statement today, Mr. Hay said "I am appalled that with seven months of the year gone, hospitals are only now being notified by the Ministry of Health of their 1976 budget allowances. What is worse," said Hay, "is that most hospitals are finding they will have less money for services and staff than the Ministry had previously led them to expect."

"Earlier this year," said Hay, "hospitals were told that they would be permitted budget increases over 1975 equivalent to 8 per cent more for employee costs and 10 per cent more for all other supplies and services. When the government came to add up the bill, however, it obviously decided that it was too high. As a result more hospitals are now being cut back."

"We won't know how adversely these cuts will affect services across the province until each hospital has been able to assess what its own budget allowance will permit. Some have already said that they will have to reduce beds and staff."

"There are early indications as well from some hospitals that cuts in out patient funds may force them to tell their physicians to make still greater use of private commercial laboratories for out patient tests. If that happens the extra cost to OHIP and the tax payer is certain to be far higher than any savings squeezed out of hospital out-patient budgets, and that doesn't make any sense to me at all," he said.

WAYSIDE EVANGEL

Divine Paradoxes

We are impressed with the fact that He who was the Bread of Life began His ministry by hungering, and He who was the Water of Life ended His ministry by thirsting.

Gregory of Nazianzen has beautifully developed this idea in these words:

"Christ hungered as man and fed the hungry as God."

He was hungry as a man and yet He is the Bread of Life;

He was thirst as a man, and yet He said 'Let him that is thirsty come.'

He who cried, 'I thirst!' also said, 'Whoever drinks of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst.' Whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely."

Taylor's Theatre on Deseronto's Main Street is a forlorn witness to better days in the town. The neglected old building was once a lively vaudeville theatre, featuring the live shows that once travelled from town to town. Later the theatre was converted to a movie house to match the changing times. Now it is derelict and badly needs repair.

Ontario ahead in pollution control

About $480 million has been spent in the last five years on sewage treatment in Ontario municipalities in the drive to clean up the Great Lakes, Environment Minister George Kerr said recently.

Mr. Kerr, speaking to the Canadian Water Resources Association, said the battle to clean up the lakes began in earnest following the 1970 conference convened in Toronto by his ministry, of neighbouring provinces and U.S. States.

Since then 'on the Ontario side, we have treatment for 94 per cent of our sewerage population and on the U.S. side has reached 60 per cent.'

Mr. Kerr said Ontario has concentrated on removing nutrients from treated sewage effluents.

'We have completed the installation of phosphate removal equipment in every sewage treatment plant in southern Ontario which discharges more than one million gallons a day in the Great Lakes,' he said.

'Sewer use by-laws also apply by and large to industries discharging wastes into the lakes,' said Mr. Kerr.

He urged municipal governments to incorporate into their own by-laws recent revisions in the Ontario Government's model by-law worked out with the Ontario Municipal Engineers Association.

Reserve garage expands

Another Reserve business is booming. B & B Auto, located on the Bayshore Road is expanding.

The business was housed in a concrete block building, but the volume of work has increased to the point where a second building, almost as large as the first is being built.

Proprietor Bennet Brant explained the reason for the second building was to house his spray painting equipment. At present the employees of B & B Auto do body work and repairs in the existing building during the daytime, but it is impossible to paint in there because of the dust raised by the grinders. This means that all spray painting must, at present be done in the evening, after the body work is finished. When the new building is completed, it will be possible for the men to do both body work and painting at the same time.

However, Mr. Brant, like so many other people in the area is complaining about the weather. "Every time I try to get on the roof to finish the sheeting, it starts to rain," he said.

B & B Auto's new building nears completion on Bayshore Road. Although the weather has held up construction, and the roof is not yet finished, B & B employees were at work in the building, changing a tire on this school bus when the photograph was taken. Proprietor Bennet Brant expects that the new facility will greatly improve the efficiency of his operation, once it is finished and has been inspected for safety features. Then it will be used as a spray painting shop.

Deseronto cadet at Cornwallis

The long, the short and the tall - words from a well known war song aptly describe this picture. Lt(N) K. Murray of Sydney, N.S. the Camp's Parade Training Officer, who measures 6' 4" receives a salute from 4' 2" A/C Dougie Hawthorn. Fourteen year old Dougie is the shortest Cadet in the Sea Cadet Summer Camp at CFB Cornwallis this summer. What he lacks in height is more than made up in heart. A/C Hawthorn is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hawthorn of Deseronto.

Deseronto boy left behind

The bus trip to Toronto to visit the Canadian National Exhibition, organized by the Deseronto Police Association, was, on the whole, a great success.

The busload of children, supervised by Constable Norman Clark and Bud Weeks left Deseronto early in the morning and planned to return late on Saturday evening.

No problems arose until it was time to leave, when it became apparent that one of the children, Jimmy Ogilvie, was missing.

Jimmy had been given the address and telephone number of friends in Toronto whom he could contact in case of emergency. After the bus had waited for two and a half hours, another of the passengers told the organizers that Jimmy had gone to visit friends.

After waiting as long as possible, the bus left to bring the other children home to Deseronto.

Jimmy Ogilvie was finally picked up at the Lost Office at the Exhibition by the friends in Toronto and came home by bus the next day.

Our own monster?

Loch Ness has had its own monster for years. Why not the Bay of Quinte? This strange, unidentified reptilian-like creature was spotted floating in the Bay at dusk last Saturday. Could it be that this is the legendary creature affectionately known to Pictonites as the Loch Sloy monster? Has Nessie crossed the Atlantic, or has the whole subject been blown out of proportion?

A photograph of a Deseronto family, taken in the early 1900's. Who are they?

Who are these people?

Mrs. Jean Jackson of Main Street Deseronto, bought a wooden box full of glass negatives at a Presbyterian Bazaar, about three years ago.

When she got the box home and looked inside she found that the negatives were of Deseronto scenes in the early 1900's.

Glass negatives were made by applying a photographic emulsion on one side of a sheet of plate glass. The emulsion was exposed to light in a box camera in the same way that the emulsion on modern rolled film is exposed.

Most of the negatives are still in good condition. Mrs. Jackson loaned them to the Scanner, and a professional photographer was engaged to make prints from the negatives.

In future weeks we shall be printing several of the photographs, the prints will eventually be donated to the library collection.

It was the publicity given to the collection of old photographs being gathered by the library that first reminded Mrs. Jackson that she had these old negatives.

Several of the scenes, such as Naylor's Theatre and some of the old Rathbun houses are easy to identify. So are some of the people. Others are not so straightforward. Mrs. Jackson and her friends were unable to discover which family is shown in this old family picture. There is another photograph of the white bearded gentleman shovelling snow.

If anyone does know who these people are, the Scanner office and Mrs. Jackson would be very pleased to hear about it.

Napanee ARC to expand

A 40 place sheltered workshop for Lennox and Addington Association for Mentally Retarded at Napanee has received Ontario Government approval. Minister of Community and Social Services and Prince Edward-Lennox MPP Hon. James Taylor said today Ontario will provide 80 per cent of the $295000 cost. McConnell Contractors Limited will erect the new workshop building on a two acre site east of Highway 41 and Highway 401.

The ARC's Industries Workshop Project for Mentally Retarded began in September 1969 with eight trainees. Funded by the Ministry of Community and Social Services, the new ARC Workshop will more than double the number of trainees being served.

This geodesic dome was built last year on a lot on the Northport road. It has been shingled this year and now had windows and hydro service. Domes such as this one are becoming more and more popular. The surface area of a dome is relatively less than that of a conventional house, so there is less heat loss through the walls and roof, making them more economical to heat.

Did you know that 16.3 per cent of the U.S. work force is employed by one government or another? Seems like a heck of a lot of bodies to be pushing paper around desks all day long I bet you that the figgers for Canada would be about the same. With that many cooks ter spoil the broth its no wonder that were all being given enough red tape to hang ourselves.

Same book said that 4.41 per cent of the Yanks work in construction but only 3.97 in agriculture. Now I know why all that concrete, and superhighways and shapping molls is being built all over the land - it's simple - they've got us outnumbered.

In fact I been reading a lot this week. Adding to my box of useless information Elma calls it. Found out that a biology teacher in Washington figgered as he could teach his students anatomy and perform a useful service at the same time. So he ups and offers to spay cats free. Well I guess the vet had a hairy right there, anybody who wanted their cat spayed could go to this here teacher, instead of the vet. The law said it weren't illegal, but the whole business caused such a fuss that the school board put a stop to it.

Reckon that were likely anyhow. I recall that biology teacher in Pictou what got into real hot water over killing frogs for the students to cut up. The board got into a real flap, even though he were doing it the right way.

Just think, 16.3 percent of us is busy causing that sort of confusion. Makes you think don't it?

HISTORICAL DESERONTO

History was made again in Deseronto this year when the government named Mrs. R. Loader Postmistress. From the time the Post Office was built until now it has always been Post Masters. The first was J. Bowen who held the position from 1851 until 1887. The town was called Mill Point originally, the name was changed to Bowen in 1857, and changed back to Mill Point again in 1863. Ultimately the name became Deseronto in 1881.

The Post Masters then appointed were as follows: F.S. Rathbun, 1887-1898; L. Hoppins 1899 - 1901; A.H. McGaughey 1902 - 1909; J.L. Gaulin 1909 - 1920; J. Fairbairn 1920 - 1944; H.R. Fraser 1944 until the appointment of J.H. McVicker in 1947. Mr. McVicker was Post Master in Deseronto until his retirement in 1971. He was followed by Mr. R. Loader who held the position until 1972, then by C. Lewis from October '73 to October '75.

During this time many served as assistants, later assuming the position of Post Master, additional help was needed at Christmas. Among those who served in more recent years were Mrs. J. Hamilton, 20 years, Mrs. E. Keech, George Cole, J. Barclay, Mrs. Wm. Jackson, Stan McGargart, Miss Dawn Smith, now Mrs. Wm. Cassidy, and George Hoppings.

Mrs. Hamilton resigned this year. Now the assistants are Mrs. Dennis Vick, Mrs. Michael Graham and Mrs. Wayne Cassidy. Caretakers over the years were Martin Hart, Harry Fraser, Jim Marlow, Jim Dobbin Sr., and now Joe Malcolm. New lighting, fresh paint and other renovations have made it a very smart looking building.

For many years the Department of Indian Affairs had offices on the second floor; these have been moved to Kingston. The Deseronto Red Cross have had rooms to keep their loan cupboard equipment. Now for a nominal fee, they have rooms on the ground floor which is much more convenient.

Many other places have had Post Mistresses for years, but this is a first for Deseronto, so, congratulations, ladies.

Old road graders, such as this one at Green Point, were once a common sight in this area. They date back to the time when people were responsible for their own stretch of road and neighbours would team up to grade and fix their section.

Grow your own poinsettias for Xmas

You can start growing your own poinsettias for Christmas now. If you saved last year's plant, you can propagate new ones from cuttings. Greenhouses have already begun their preparations.

Each cutting is to have about four or five leaves on it. Before rooting it in water, the cuttings must be dusted with rooting hormone.

During the next six weeks, keep the cuttings in a partially shaded, warm place. Once the roots have become well established, place the cuttings in a mixture of peat and perlite or a good general potting soil.

Pinch the top growth to encourage bushy growth. When necessary, pinch the plant when necessary. When the new growth is about two inches high, you may wish to repot the plant into a larger container.

However, it is a good idea to finish pinching early in September.

Poinsettias prefer temperatures around 65 degrees F and should never be exposed to artificial light from mid-September to the end of October, since it will prevent the flower buds from forming. With a little care your poinsettia will flower in time for Christmas.

Quinte News Round Up

A new electronics industry which will employ about 30 people is being built in Prince Edward County. Secutron Limited recently received an Ontario government loan to help with the construction of the plant in North Marysburgh Township. The new plant is expected to open in October.

Tomato blight has not been a problem in this area since 1957, but already this year several fields have been wiped out by the disease.

The disease spreads very rapidly in cold wet summer weather. Control can be partially achieved by spraying fields with copper sulphate and lime to prevent the spread of the disease.

This is not the only area which is reporting damage from tomato blight this year, southwestern Ontario also reports damage, and conditions in New York State are described as very bad.

Two men who appeared in Napanee court last week and pleaded guilty to vandalism in Tamworth church, have not yet been sentenced because no estimate of the damage they had done was available.

Judge Ronald Jackson refused to pass sentence until he had a damage estimate. The two men had tipped over the lectern and thrown a console organ against a wall.

Two Pictou men were rescued by the Pictou detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police and Search and Rescue personnel from CF8 Trenton after the motor on their boat stopped working.

Robert Sharpe and Gordon Fox were due to arrive in Pictou harbour at 7:30 p.m. Monday, and when their families had not received word from them by 9:00 a.m. Tuesday, they notified the police.

The engine failed near Prinzer's Cove and the drifting boat was finally spotted near Main Duck Island.

The president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture is sceptical about the latest government proposal to make all agricultural land in Ontario tax exempt.

WAYSIDE EVANGEL

I WONDER by Lorraine J. Kaufman

Lord, did I have to come the long way?
Such a hard road to travel?
The days dreary and lonely
The nights dark and cold.
I stumbled, Lord, many times
And I cried when I fell.

It took such a long time
To get to this place,
Was this the only way, Lord?
Did it take all those tones,
And clouds and tears
To bring me here . . .
to this place . . .

Where I can see and understand
And know the fullness of Thyself?
Was this the only way, Lord?
But I often wonder . . .
Would I ever have arrived
Lord, by any other road?

Super Shish Kabobs

For great family happenings and special festive get-togethers the barbeque is a great Canadian eating style.

Shish-kabobs are fun for everyone. They are simply cube shaped food, the "Kabob", threaded on a skewer, the "shish". The practice dates back to the Caucasian mountaineers who used wild game for food and their swords as skewers.

Grilled to toasty doneness, pork and pork products make the most exciting skewered fare. You will find the barbeque of its best when you use lean Ontario pork in these new porkabob ideas.

PORKABOBS

2 pounds lean fresh pork shoulder, pork loin, tenderloin or leg of pork.
2 cup orange juice
1/3 cup honey
1/2 teaspoon marjoram

Combine orange juice, honey, marjoram. Place pork cubes in shallow glass dish or in heavy plastic bag. Pour orange juice mixture over pork. Refrigerate 3 - 4 hours or overnight, turning meat occasionally. When ready to cook, remove pork from marinade; pour marinade into a small pan.

Thread pork cubes on 6 long skewers with 1/4 inch between cubes so they will cook on all sides. Place on well greased grill 5 inches from medium hot coals. Barbeque, turning frequently and brushing often with marinade. Cook 30 minutes until meat is tender and richly glazed. Makes 6 servings.

Vegetables and fruits cook more quickly on a grill. They should be strung separately from the meat and cooked on the grill for their required cooking time.

HAM AND BANANA BOBS

1 pound cooked ham. Luncheon meat or cooked ham sausage cut in 1" cubes.
2 bananas cut into 1" pieces
1/4 cup pancake syrup or maple syrup.

Alternate ham cubes and banana slices on 4 skewers. (If you use wooden skewers soak in water for about 15 min. before threading.) Place on greased grill about 5 inches above medium heat. Barbeque, turning often, brushing with syrup for about 8 minutes on each side until ham and bananas are hot and lightly browned. Makes 4 servings.

Kids find these as much fun as a hamburger. Also they love the Frankabob.

FRANKABOB

Cut each wiener into five pieces; alternate with pineapple cubes and mandarin orange sections on skewer. Grill 4 ins. above medium hot coals, turning often 5 - 8 minutes until wiener toasts and browns. Serve frankabobs on their own or in toasted hot dog buns with mustard sauce.

Iroquoian Indian law 500 years old

The Iroquois, or Six Nation Indians as they are known today, developed a highly organized political and social system. They comprise the Mohawk, Cayuga, Seneca, Oneida, Onondaga, and Tuscarora tribes living in southern Ontario, Quebec and New York State; yet a general classification, the Iroquoians would include the Huron, Erie, Neutral, Ceneotaga and Tobacco Indians.

Because the Iroquoians depended on farming for their staple foods, they established permanent homes and villages surrounded by stockades within which they built their famous "long houses". The men's forages from the village to hunt large game for their hides occurred only when absolutely necessary, as the women, who did the farming, carried the greatest responsibility for providing for the families. The basis of the society was amatriarchy.

Iroquoian political life gained a complex structure with the arrival of a Huron prophet named Degonawidah and his Mahawk translator Hiawatha, in the 1400's. Hiawatha introduced wampum (beads made from shells strung together) to the Iroquoians at the time of the founding of the Five Nations or Iroquois Confederacy. (The Tuscarora joined in 1724 to make the sixth nation) He taught that wampum was sacred and a symbol to bind people together in peace. The message given on a wampum belt or string was never challenged when it was used as a symbol of friendship or given in a treaty.

When the Great Law was given to the Iroquoians by Degonawidah and a constitution devised to prevent any misinterpretation of the political structure, it was recorded on wampum and this collection became the most important wampum record in the history of the Iroquois Confederacy.

The Great Law as constituted by Degonawidah and recorded by the people, goes into great detail about all the affairs of the Iroquoian people, but some of the most interesting points are given in symbols. For example, one very important, broad, dark belt of wampum known as the Hiawatha belt, was the symbol of unity and peace within the Five Nations. The belt incorporated a white beaded heart in the centre with two white squares on either side, all joined together by rows of white beads. The white heart stood for the Onondaga Nation and also for the great peace shared by all Five Nations.

When Degonawidah presented the Great Law to the Iroquoian people, he requested that all the fifty chiefs stand in a circle and join hands while he ordained that all should remain equal in rank and title. So that no individual would forget his title or position within the Confederacy, certain men were appointed to learn the Great Law as recorded on the wampum.

Thereafter, every law passed by the Iroquois Confederacy was recorded by a certain string or belt of wampum. Because of the introduction of wampum, the laws of the Iroquoians were seldom challenged, and they became one of the strongest Indian nations in North America.

Although many of the wampum belts are lost or have been destroyed, there are still elders who can recite the Great Law from memory.
